Citytech technology champion award

JoAnna Forshee of Envision (picture with myself and Mr Gorilla above) wins my vote for legal technology champion on the week. She is one of a few pr and marketing agencies specialising in legal technology that actually understands the business. She is a mover and shaker in the US, holding some of the biggest technology vendor accounts out there. If you are moving into the US, she should be your first port of call. She offers assistance and contacts easing your integration into the US market without the usual pain. She actively helped clients make connections sourcing useful leads at the ILTA event and ensured that all events she was running were attended and ran smoothly. She has a commercial head that is not usual from pr and marketing firms. www.envisionagency.com
